

Dennis Thompson, Professor of Government and Alfred North Whitehead Professor of Political Philosophy at Harvard University, speaks on “Deliberative Democracy in Action: The Case of the Citizens Assembly” on November 9, 2007, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies. The talk was part of the center’s Citizenship Lecture Series.

(Left to right) Allan Silverman, Professor of Philosophy, stands with Dennis Thompson and Mike Neblo, Assistant Professor of Political Science, during a reception after the lecture. Silverman organizes the center’s Citizenship Lecture Series, which co-sponsored the talk with the Department of Political Science.

About 30 people attended a reception at the Mershon Center after Thompson's talk.